Employer Description

Baker Rullman manufacturing, Inc., designs and fabricates corrugated, bolt together, rectangular load-out bins, bulk storage bins, for agricultural and industrial markets, as well as seed corn and soybean drying systems. We pride ourselves in not only high-quality construction at competitive prices, but also engineering safe structures that conform to today's regulations for seismic and wind loads. These bins are very often used in feed and seed mills which Baker Rullman also designs and has a global track record of success.

In addition to corrugated bins and mills, Baker Rullman also designs and builds complete rotary dryer dehydration systems which are used to dry fruit and vegetable waste, distillers' grains, municipal sludge, manures, wood derivatives, and livestock by products.
